For over two decades, marine biologist Ingrid Visser has dedicated her life to studying the killer whales of New Zealand. In her captivating book, 'My Life with New Zealand Killer Whales', she shares her extraordinary experiences and insights into the lives of these magnificent creatures.

Through stunning photography and engaging storytelling, Visser transports readers to the remote waters of New Zealand, where she has spent countless hours observing and interacting with these apex predators. She describes the complex social dynamics, hunting strategies, and communication methods of killer whales, offering a rare glimpse into their hidden world.

Visser's passion for her work is evident on every page. She vividly recounts her encounters with individual whales, each with its own unique personality and history. She shares heartwarming stories of playful calves and protective mothers, as well as heart-wrenching accounts of whale strandings and the threats they face in the wild.

Beyond its scientific value, 'My Life with New Zealand Killer Whales' is also a testament to the transformative power of human-wildlife interactions. Visser's deep connection with these animals shines through in her writing, inspiring readers to appreciate the beauty and fragility of our natural world.

This book is a must-read for anyone who loves wildlife, the ocean, or simply wants to be inspired by an extraordinary life dedicated to conservation. With its breathtaking photography, captivating stories, and unwavering passion, 'My Life with New Zealand Killer Whales' is an unforgettable journey that will stay with readers long after they finish the last page.

Praise for 'My Life with New Zealand Killer Whales':

"A stunning and intimate portrait of one of the most fascinating creatures on Earth. Ingrid Visser's passion and dedication are evident on every page." - Jane Goodall, PhD, DBE

"A must-read for anyone who cares about the ocean and its inhabitants. Visser's work is a testament to the power of science and the importance of conservation." - Sylvia Earle, PhD, National Geographic Explorer-in-Residence

"A beautifully written and deeply personal account of a remarkable life spent in the company of killer whales. Visser's insights into their behavior and intelligence are invaluable." - Richard Ellis, author of 'The Book of Whales'
